The EPLO Institute for Sustainable Development named Official Nominator for The Earthshot Prize 2022

The search for the winners of The Earthshot Prize 2022 has begun and the EPLO Institute for Sustainable Development is proud to be appointed as an official Nominator. Launched in 2020 The Earthshot Prize is the most prestigious global environment prize in history, announcing the first incredible winners in October 2021.

As an Official Nominator, we are one of over 250 organisations from across the world, invited to submit nominations, selected for our ability to identify the most impactful solutions across all sectors, from grassroots to businesses.

The Earthshot Prize will consider solutions which make tangible progress towards one of the five Earthshots. They should be beyond idea stage, have tested their solution in-field or with target audiences, and are at a 'tipping point' for scaling their impact within the next five years.

If you have a solution that is inspiring, inclusive and impactful, please get in touch with Christina Deligianni for a further discussion.

You can find out more about the Prize, our role as an Official Nominator, and the 5-stage process to selecting winners at www.earthshotprize.org.
