Institute for Higher Education, Law & Governance (IHELG)

About IHELG

The Institute for Higher Education Law and Governance (IHELG) is home to sponsored research and academic programmes and projects that examine higher education systems and policy issues from a wide range of analytical perspectives, including those of social scientists, policy makers, and institutional leaders from across sectors within Europe and abroad.

The Institute is composed by a multi-disciplinary group of faculty, researchers and graduate students housed in the European Public Law Organization (EPLO).

The Institute has been established in order to promote the research, development of studies, opinions, education and training in the field of higher education studies of a global or multinational dimension. The field of interest of the IHELG includes the study and research of situations characterized as global and/or international higher education studies with the aim to identify and to analyze the instruments to be used for their management, the models of public communication, the impact of policies, the best practices used both at legislative and administrative level.

Activities

IHELG encourages and (co) organizes analyses, studies, researches, conferences, lectures, seminars, discussions, meetings and publications in the field of higher education studies. It also stimulates academic, university and public interest in the knowledge, reasoning, theory and management of higher education systems at national, European and international level.

As concerns its educational activities, the IHELG encourages and (co) organises academic and research courses, study and training programs, practical activities in the field of expertise.

The Institute provides opinions and prepares reports in the field of expertise as well for the benefit of different organisations, institutions and official bodies at European and international level.

Organization

The Institute is under the responsibility of its Director and the Advisory Council.

The Director of the Institute collaborates with the Management and other services of the EPLO in order to secure material feasibility, planning and execution of their decisions.

The IHELG, affiliated to the ELGS, also constitutes a postgraduate institute of Higher Education of the EPLO.

The Advisory Council is composed of scientists and experts of fields relative to Higher Education studies from all over the world, offering its academic experience.
