

EPLO
European Public Law
Organization

4/04/2017

Lecture by A. Gromyko on " Brexit and Trumpism" for the world

A lecture on whether and how the Brexit and the election of President Trump may reverse the world status will be given by Professor Alexey Gromyko on Tuesday, April 4, at 19.00 at the conference hall of the European Public Law Organization (EPLO) in Plaka, Athens. (Dioscuron St and Pikilis Square, opposite the entrance of the Roman Agora). Admission is free.

Prof. Alexey Gromyko is Director of the Institute of Europe of the Russian Academy of Sciences, grandson of an emblematic personality of the international diplomacy, Andrei Gkromiko, who served the USSR as Minister of foreign affairs for 28 years.

His lecture entitled "Brexit and Trumpism: Breaking the Mould?" will be part of the International Lecture Series honoring Manuel Chrysoloras (1350-1415), the Greek scholar who spread Greek literature in the West during the Middle Ages and today is viewed as the symbol of the Hellenic contribution to the revival of European Culture.